

Dax P. Sua- is a Theologian, Student activist, Poet and former school teacher. He is also a passionate goal oriented social worker and has a strong pedigree in student activism and community development. From 1997-2002, he was involved with radical Liberian student politics at the College of West Africa and the University of Liberia.

In 2003, he fled the brutal civil crisis in Liberia to continue his studies in the Federal Republic of Nigeria. He briefly attended Lagos State University and later won a scholarship to study Theology at the Seminary. He graduated Magnum Cum Laude from the Faith Christian Theological Seminary in Ogun State, Western Nigeria and is currently studying for a Law Degree.

Dax has worked with underprivileged school children in several disadvantaged communities across Lagos as a teacher and social worker. He has also helped over 2000 Nigerian Primary School children to adequately prepare for their Common Entrance Exams. He takes pride in serving humanity and loves helping children. He is the Country Director of SUA Foundation in Liberia and has been working to implement the Foundation's programs on Democracy, Education, Health Care, Agriculture and Community Development.